What Is the Meaning of Human Life and How to Realize It

Abstract

This research work reveals the following: the meaning of human life exists, how humans can come to understanding of the meaning of human life, the meaning of human life is the same for all humans, what is the meaning of human life and how to realize it, what is the fundamental problem of humanity.

How to Come to Understanding of the Meaning of Human Life

To come to understanding of the meaning of human life is possible only through understanding the nature of the universe and man disclosed in my research work Theory of the Nature of the Universe and Man [1], which is based on the achievements of modern physical science in understanding the laws of the Universe.

The research work [1] reveals for the first time the origin of the Universe, how material matter appeared, how the Supreme Mind, souls and the immaterial world of the Universe appeared and what they are, what is the meaning of the soul's life, why and how the Supreme Mind created and develops the material world of the Universe, why and how souls interacts with humans, what is the nature of humans, why the Supreme Mind is interested in humans, what is the Information Field and what are its functions, how humans interact with the Information Field, what are the functions of the human brain, where is human memory stored, what are human fate and free will, what determines human fate, who am I, what future awaits the soul after a human's death, why souls incarnate into humans many times, what future holds for the Earth, humanity and human civilization, what is the meaning of the existence of the Universe, what is the fundamental problem of humans.

My theory of the nature of the universe and man can be summarized as follows:

- The Universe is not infinite and has a spherical shape.
- Before the Big Bang, which occurred in the Universe approximately 13.8 billion years ago, the Universe was filled only with quanta of space-time. Quantum has an energy-informational nature. Quantized space-time of the Universe is an energy-informational medium.
- The Big Bang occurred as a result of an increase in the pressure and density of quantized space-time at the center of the Universe.
- The Big Bang initiated a continuous process of the emergence of information and energy in the Universe. The amount of information and energy available in the Universe is colossal.
- As a result of the interaction of information and energy with quantized space-time of the Universe, material matter emerged.
- Information has the ability to self-organize and develop.
- As a result of the self-organization and development of information, developing information systems (DIS) are constantly emerging in the Universe, which, in turn, as they develop, transform into developing intelligent information systems (DIIS). DIS and DIIS are energy-informational objects.
- At some point in the evolution of the Universe, DIIS that have reached the highest level of development self-organized and due to numerous mergers transformed into a universal developing intelligent information system of the highest level of development (the Supreme Mind).

- The process of joining DIIS that have reached the highest level of development to the Supreme Mind is never-ending, as a result of which the Supreme Mind is constantly developing.

- The Supreme Mind has no personal relationship with the external world and no individualizing characteristics.

- Through the purposeful management of information and energy, the Supreme Mind creates the most complex objects of inanimate and living nature from material matter.

- The Supreme Mind purposefully manages immaterial and material worlds of the Universe.

- The immaterial world of the Universe is a collection of a vast number of DIS of varying levels of development that do not possess mind and a vast number of DIIS of varying levels of mind development.

- The material world of the Universe is a collection of material matter (elementary particles possessing mass) and objects of both inanimate and living nature in the Universe, which are composed of material matter.

- The Supreme Mind by means of Information Fields purposefully manages the development of DIS and DIIS for the purpose of their correct development.

- The Information Field
