Введение

Данная книга представляет собой учебно-практический материал, предназначенный для изучающих английский язык на уровне А2. Основной целью издания является развитие навыков устной и письменной речи через работу с темами, связанными с повседневной жизнью, личным опытом и типичными ситуациями общения.

Материал организован по тематическим главам, каждая из которых содержит связный текст, список ключевой лексики и выражений, речевые шаблоны, а также практические задания для закрепления изученного. Такой подход позволяет не только расширить словарный запас, но и сформировать умение использовать устойчивые выражения в реальной коммуникации.

Особое внимание уделяется развитию навыков самостоятельного высказывания. Вопросы и задания направлены на то, чтобы обучающийся мог строить собственные ответы, опираясь на предложенные языковые конструкции, а не заучивать готовые фразы. Это способствует более устойчивому усвоению языкового материала.

Темы подобраны таким образом, чтобы отражать ситуации, с которыми человек сталкивается в повседневной жизни: общение с друзьями, использование технологий, бытовые трудности, личные привычки и опыт. Это обеспечивает практическую направленность материала и повышает его применимость в реальных условиях.

Данное издание может быть использовано как для самостоятельного изучения, так и в рамках занятий с преподавателем. Оно ориентировано на постепенное развитие языковых навыков и формирование уверенности при использовании английского языка в простых коммуникативных ситуациях.

My real daily routine

Main text

My daily routine is not perfect and it is not always the same, but I want to describe a real typical day in my life. I usually wake up at around seven o'clock in the morning, although sometimes I wake up later because I feel tired. The first thing I do is check my phone for messages and notifications, but I try not to spend too much time on it because I need to get ready for the day.

After that I get out of bed and go to the bathroom. I wash my face, brush my teeth and try to wake myself up. Then I go to the kitchen to have breakfast. I usually eat something simple like bread with cheese or eggs. I also drink tea or coffee because it helps me feel more active in the morning.

When I finish breakfast, I get dressed. I usually choose comfortable clothes because I want to feel relaxed during the day. If I have work or study, I leave the house at about eight or nine o'clock. I often take the bus or sometimes I walk if the weather is nice.

My morning is usually busy. I study or work for several hours. I try to stay focused but sometimes I get distracted, especially when I am tired. I usually take a short break to drink water or eat a snack. During this time I also talk to friends or check social media for a few minutes.

At lunch time I eat something at home or near my workplace. I do not always eat healthy food, but I try to choose better options when I can. After lunch I continue working or studying. In the afternoon I feel a bit tired, so I drink coffee or take a short rest.

In the evening I go back home. This is my favorite part of the day because I can relax. I usually watch videos, listen to music or talk with my family. Sometimes I go for a walk outside because it helps me clear my mind.

Later I have dinner. My dinner is usually simple, like soup, rice or pasta. After dinner I spend time on hobbies or personal activities. I might read something, watch a series or just scroll on my phone.

Before going to bed I try to prepare for the next day. I check what I need to do and sometimes I make a small plan. I go to bed around eleven o'clock, although sometimes I sleep later if I am not tired.

My routine is not perfect, but it works for me. Some days are more productive and some days are more relaxed. I think it is normal because life is not always the same every day.

A lazy day at home

Main text

Sometimes I have a lazy day at home, and honestly, I think it is completely normal. On these days I do not follow a strict routine because I just want to relax and take a break from everything. I usually wake up late, around nine or even ten o'clock, because I do not set an alarm. I stay in bed for a while, scroll on my phone and slowly start my day.

I do not rush in the morning. I get up when I feel ready and go to the kitchen. I usually make something very simple for breakfast, like toast, cereal or just tea with biscuits. I eat slowly and sometimes I watch videos while I am eating. It is not very healthy or productive, but it feels comfortable.

After breakfast I often go back to my room or sit on the sofa. I might watch a series, listen to music or just relax without doing anything important. I do not feel guilty because I think everyone needs days like this. Although I sometimes plan to do something useful, I usually end up staying lazy for a while longer.

During the day I may do small things like cleaning my room or answering messages, but I do not do anything difficult. I also like to take short breaks and just lie down. It helps me clear my mind and feel more relaxed. Sometimes I even fall asleep again in the afternoon.

For lunch I eat something quick, like sandwiches, soup or leftovers from yesterday. I do not cook anything special because I do not have much energy on lazy days. After lunch I usually continue relaxing. I might watch videos, play games or scroll on social media for a long time.

In the afternoon I sometimes go outside for a short walk, but only if I feel like it. Fresh air helps me feel better, although I do not always leave the house. If I stay home, I continue my quiet activities.

In the evening I feel a bit more active, so I tidy up a little or prepare for the next day. I also talk with my family or friends. This is a nice part of the day because I feel more connected after spending time alone.

Later I have dinner. It is usually simple, like pasta, rice or something quick. After dinner I relax again, maybe watch a film or listen to music. I try not to think about stress or work.

Before going to bed I check my phone, set my alarm and get ready for sleep. Even on lazy days I try to sleep at a normal time because I do not want to mess up my routine too much.

A lazy day at home is not very productive, but I think it is important. It helps me rest, recharge my energy and feel better for the next days.

Key Vocabulary and Expressions

lazy day — ленивый день

stay in bed — оставаться в постели

scroll on my phone — листать телефон

A stressful day

A stressful day usually starts from the morning, and I can feel it even before I get out of bed. Sometimes I wake up late because I do not hear my alarm or I turn it off and fall asleep again. Then I suddenly realize that I am already late, so I quickly get up and start rushing.

In the morning I do everything very fast. I wash my face, brush my teeth and get dressed in a hurry. I do not really have time for a proper breakfast, so I usually just drink tea or coffee and maybe eat something small. While I am getting ready, I keep checking the time and I start feeling nervous because I do not want to be late.

When I leave the house, I often feel stressed because everything seems to go wrong. Sometimes the bus is late or there is traffic, so I worry even more. I try to stay calm, but it is not easy. I listen to music on my phone because it helps me forget stress a little bit.

At work or school the day is usually very busy. I have many tasks to do and I try to stay focused, but I often feel pressure because there is not enough time. I move from one task to another without really resting. Sometimes I take a short break, but even then I think about what I still need to finish.

At lunch I do not really relax. I eat quickly and maybe check messages or plan my next tasks. I know it is not healthy to be stressed all the time, but on busy days it is hard to slow down.

In the afternoon I usually feel tired and mentally exhausted. I try to drink water or coffee to stay active, but my energy is low. I just wait for the day to end.

When I finally finish work or study, I feel a big relief. Going back home is one of the best moments because I can finally relax. Even though I am tired, I feel happy that the stressful part of the day is over.

In the evening I usually do something calming. I might take a shower, listen to music or watch something light on TV. I try not to think about problems from the day because I need to clear my mind.

After dinner I spend time doing simple things like scrolling on my phone or talking to my family. I do not do anything difficult because I need rest. Before going to bed I try to relax and prepare for sleep.

A stressful day is not pleasant, but it is a part of life. It teaches me to manage my time better and appreciate calm days more.

Key Vocabulary and Expressions

stressful day — стрессовый день

A productive day

Main text

A productive day is a day when I feel that I really use my time well and finish many useful things. It does not mean that I am busy all the time, but I feel focused and satisfied with what I do.

I usually wake up early on a productive day, around seven o'clock. I do not stay in bed too long because I already have a plan in my head. I get up, wash my face, brush my teeth and quickly get ready. I try not to waste time in the morning because I want to start the day in a good way.

For breakfast I usually eat something simple but healthy, like eggs, yogurt or oatmeal. I also drink coffee or tea because it helps me feel more active and focused. While I eat, I sometimes think about my goals for the day.

After breakfast I start my main tasks. This can be studying, working or doing personal projects. I try to stay focused and avoid distractions like my phone or social media. I usually work for one or two hours, then take a short break. During the break I stretch, drink water or just relax for a few minutes.

In the middle of the day I feel very productive. I can complete many tasks and I feel motivated. Sometimes I listen to music because it helps me concentrate better. I like this part of the day because I feel that I am moving forward and not wasting time.

At lunch I take a proper break. I eat something healthy and I try not to rush. I also talk with friends or family sometimes. This helps me relax a little before continuing my work.

In the afternoon I continue with my tasks. I may feel a bit tired, but I try to stay disciplined. If I feel low energy, I take a short walk or drink coffee. It helps me refresh my mind and continue working.

In the evening I usually finish my main tasks and feel a strong sense of satisfaction. This is one of the best feelings because I know I used my time well. I go back home and relax.

After dinner I spend time on light activities like watching videos, reading or talking with family. I do not do anything too stressful because I want to rest after a productive day.

Before going to bed I often make a small plan for the next day. I check what I achieved and what I still need to do. Then I go to sleep feeling calm and satisfied.

A productive day helps me feel confident and motivated. I think it is important to have days like this because they help me reach my goals step by step.

Key Vocabulary and Expressions

productive day — продуктивный день

use my time well — хорошо использовать время

My morning chaos (when everything goes wrong)

Main text

Sometimes my morning is completely chaotic, and nothing goes the way I planned. It usually starts when I wake up late and realize that I do not have enough time to get ready. I quickly open my eyes, look at the clock and immediately feel stressed because I understand that I am already behind schedule.

I get out of bed in a hurry and start doing everything very fast. I wash my face, brush my teeth and try to get dressed as quickly as possible. But on these mornings, small problems always happen. I cannot find my clothes, or I choose the wrong shirt and then I have to change it again. It makes me even more nervous.

While I am getting ready, I keep checking the time again and again. I feel like the minutes are disappearing too fast. I often skip breakfast or just drink coffee because I do not have time to sit and eat properly. I know it is not healthy, but I just want to leave the house as soon as possible.

Then something else usually goes wrong. I cannot find my keys, or my phone is not charged, or I forget something important like my wallet. I run around the house trying to fix everything at the last moment. It feels like a small disaster every time.

When I finally leave the house, I often feel out of breath and stressed. Sometimes I miss the bus, or there is traffic on the road, so I get even more anxious. I try to stay calm, but it is not easy because I already feel late and worried.

During the ride I usually sit and think about my morning mistakes. I tell myself that tomorrow I will wake up earlier, but sometimes the same thing happens again. I listen to music to calm down, because it helps me forget the chaos for a few minutes.

When I arrive at work or school, I feel tired and a bit frustrated. It takes time to focus because my morning was so stressful. I usually need a few minutes just to sit quietly and organize my thoughts.

Later in the day everything becomes normal again, but I still remember the chaotic morning. It always reminds me that I should prepare better in the evening, like checking my clothes, charging my phone and going to bed earlier.

Even though these mornings are stressful, they also teach me something important. I understand that good preparation can save a lot of time and stress.

My evening relaxation routine

Main text

My evening relaxation routine is very important for me because it helps me calm down after a long and sometimes stressful day. When I come back home in the evening, I usually feel tired, so I try to slow down and change my mood.

The first thing I do is take off my shoes and change into comfortable clothes. I like this moment because I finally feel free from the outside world. After that I usually wash my hands and face, and I spend a few minutes just sitting quietly. It helps me leave all the stress behind.

Then I often have dinner. My dinner is usually simple, like soup, rice, pasta or something light. I do not rush while eating because I want to enjoy the moment. Sometimes I eat while watching something relaxing, like a series or funny videos.

After dinner I start my real relaxation time. I usually sit on the sofa or lie down on my bed. I might scroll on my phone, listen to music or watch videos. This is my favorite part of the evening because I do not need to think about work or study.

Sometimes I talk to my family or friends in the evening. It is nice to share small stories about the day and feel connected. Although I am tired, these conversations make me feel better.

If I feel a bit active, I sometimes go for a short walk outside. The fresh air helps me clear my mind and relax my body. Even a 10—15 minute walk can improve my mood.

Later in the evening I try to do something calm and quiet. I might read a book, watch a light show or just listen to music in a low volume. I avoid stressful activities because I want my mind to rest.

Before going to bed I usually prepare for the next day. I check what I need to do, set my alarm and sometimes lay out my clothes. This helps me feel organized and less stressed in the morning.

Finally I go to bed and try to fall asleep peacefully. I do not always fall asleep immediately, but I try to relax, breathe slowly and think about good things.

My evening relaxation routine is simple, but it helps me a lot. It gives me balance, reduces stress and prepares me for a new day.

My habits that I want to change

Main text

Everyone has habits that are not perfect, and I am not an exception. I also have some habits that I want to change because they sometimes make my life more stressful or less productive. I think it is normal, but I also believe that small changes can improve daily life.

One of my main habits is using my phone too much. I often scroll on social media without noticing how much time I spend on it. Sometimes I plan to use my phone for only a few minutes, but I end up spending much longer. Because of this, I waste time that I could use for studying, working or resting properly. I want to reduce this habit and use my time more wisely.

Another habit I want to change is going to bed too late. I sometimes watch videos or use my phone at night, and I do not realize how late it becomes. As a result, I wake up feeling tired and not ready for the day. I know that good sleep is very important, so I want to improve my sleep schedule and go to bed earlier.

I also have a habit of procrastinating. When I have tasks to do, especially difficult ones, I sometimes delay them and do something easier instead. For example, I might clean my room or check messages instead of starting my work. This makes me feel more stressed later because I still have unfinished tasks. I want to learn how to stay focused and start tasks on time.

Another thing I want to change is skipping breakfast when I am in a hurry. In the morning, I sometimes do not have enough time, so I just drink coffee and leave the house. Although it saves time, I feel less energetic during the day. I think having a simple breakfast would help me feel better and more active.

Sometimes I also want to improve how I manage my time. I do not always make a clear plan for the day, so I can get distracted easily. When I do not organize my tasks, I feel like the day passes quickly without doing enough important things. I want to start planning my day better and setting clear goals.

Even though these habits are not very serious, I believe they affect my life. I am trying to change them step by step, not all at once. I know that it takes time and effort, but I want to become more disciplined and balanced.

Changing habits is not easy, but I think it is possible if I stay consistent. Even small improvements can make a big difference in my daily routine and overall well-being.

Life without phone for one day

Main text

Living without a phone for one day sounds easy, but in reality it can feel very different from a normal day. I decided to try it because I wanted to see how much I depend on my phone and how I spend my time without it.

In the morning I usually wake up and immediately check my phone, but on this day I could not do that. At first it felt strange because I did not know the time or any messages. I had to rely on my own routine instead of notifications. I got up, washed my face and brushed my teeth without any distractions.

Breakfast was also different. I did not scroll on social media while eating, so I paid more attention to my food. It felt slower, but also more peaceful. I noticed that I actually enjoy simple moments more when I am not distracted.

After breakfast I did not know what to do at first because I usually use my phone for entertainment. So I decided to clean my room and organize my things. It was surprising, but I felt more productive than usual. I also read a book for a while, which I normally do not do often.

During the day I felt a mix of feelings. Sometimes I felt bored because I could not check messages or watch videos. But at the same time I felt more focused. I could think more clearly and I did not get distracted all the time. I even went for a long walk outside and really noticed my surroundings.

Lunch was simple, but I ate slowly and without rushing. I also had more time to think and relax. I realized that without a phone, time feels different. Sometimes it feels slower, but more real.

In the afternoon I continued reading and doing small tasks at home. I also wrote some notes and made a small plan for the next days. I felt like I had more control over my time, even though I did not have my phone.

In the evening I spent time talking with my family. It was actually very nice because we had longer conversations without interruptions. We laughed more and shared more stories than usual.

Before going to bed I felt calm but also a little curious. I wondered how many times I normally check my phone without thinking. I realized that my phone is a big part of my daily life, but I can live without it for a while.

This experience taught me that life without a phone can be more peaceful and productive, even if it feels unusual at first. It helped me understand that sometimes it is good to disconnect and focus on real life.

My comfort zone

Main text

My comfort zone is the place where I feel safe, relaxed and free from stress. It is not only a physical place, but also a way of living and thinking. I usually feel in my comfort zone when I am at home, in my room, doing simple and familiar things.
